Eastern Washington College is located in Cheney, just 16 miles from Spokane on highway 11. To the northeast is lake and mountain country, to the southeast lie the rolling hills of the Palouse wheatland and to the west is the Big Bend wheatland and the Columbia Basin.

The terrain at and near Cheney is rich in geological and historical significance. This land was carved and shaped during the great glacial periods. In more recent years some of the final Indian battles in the Northwest were fought nearby. Captain George Wright met the local tribes at the battle of Four Lakes. The famous Mullan road was laid out just to the south of Cheney, and Steptoe butte, named after the principal of another famous Inland Empire Indian fight, is visible to the south . . .

Hardy pioneers settled near Cheney, originally known as Depot Springs, and at one time the town was the county seat. It lost that distinction in the rough and tumble days of the late 19th century.

Eastern is the oldest of the three state colleges of education. It was founded in 1882 as a private school, the Benjamin P. Cheney academy, on land donated by the railroad magnate after whom the town is named. In 1890 it became Cheney Normal and finally in 1937 the name was changed to Eastern Washington College of Education. The curriculum has since been expanded to include a strong liberal arts program in addition to its fine teacher training program. The school is the fourth largest institution of higher learning in the state of Washington.

This book is designed to answer questions asked by the prospective student and his parents, who as Washington state taxpayers, have a very real interest in Eastern, its function, its purpose and its accomplishments.

MUSIC HALL

THE CAMPUS

Eastern's campus sprawls over 54 acres of land on the edge of Cheney, population 3000. The steadily expanding campus presently includes five dormitories, a motel-type housing unit for married students, a Student Union, a mammoth Fieldhouse, a Library, a Laboratory Elementary School, a Music Hall, a Reserve Officer Training Corps classroom building and huge Showalter Hall, classroom and administration building. Planned for construction in the near future are a science building, an applied and fine arts building, a new campus school and a new dormitory . . .

Visitors approach the campus through "The Pillars," campus landmarks which were a part of the former Ad building, destroyed by fire in 1912. Other campus landmarks include "Hello Walk" where students, faculty and visitors traditionally greet each other with a friendly hello; "Kissing Rock" where many EWCE couples have become engaged, and the Victory Tower, which holds the campus victory bell and is traditionally rung by freshmen after an EWCE football win.

Indian symbolism plays a large part in Eastern traditions. The lower rotunda of Showalter hall is dominated by a statue of Sacajawea, and that name goes to the senior co-ed picked each year by her classmates as the school's official hostess. The senior traditional ceremony "passing the arrow" signifies the end of a college career for the graduating class. EWCE athletic teams are known as the Savages.

HARGREAVES LIBRARY

Eastern's Music Hall contains a studio amphitheater for rehearsals by the Collegiate Chorale, the Concert Band and the College Symphonic Orchestra. In addition, it includes instrumental and vocal practice rooms and the music library.

Hargreaves Library houses the stacks, the Kingston Northwest Library, The Curriculum Laboratory, offices and classrooms.

Eastern's is a friendly campus. And in an area known for its beautiful campuses, Eastern's is one of the finest. The campus is dotted with hundreds of trees, including rare and strange varieties. Shrubs and flower beds add to the attraction of the grounds and the campus is one of blooms and changing colors from spring through fall. In the eastern Washington climate, the campus is usually blanketed by snow during the winter months.

THE PILLARS

SHOWALTER HALL — Heart of the Campus

Academic and Administrative center of the college is Showalter Hall. Built in 1914 after the destruction by fire of the first Ad Building, Showalter stands in the center of an expanse of landscaped campus lawn and trees. The huge building dominates the campus and every student at Eastern has classes in Showalter. Its rotundas are a favorite place for the break between classes. Its auditorium stage hosts internationally famous artists, student musicians, college dramatists and official meetings.

"Getting an Education"

A student's primary purpose in attending college is "to get an education." But what is an education? For one student it means training in the biological sciences, for another it means the study of literature, for another music; one student intends to teach elementary school children, one wants to coach, another student plans to go from Eastern to a medical school and another wants only two years of secretarial work before she goes to work.

Whatever the purpose, Eastern Washington college's faculty and program meet a wide scale of educational goals.

A student's primary interest in college is academic. And that interest takes him into the classroom, into the laboratory, to the library, on field trips, and more than any place else, it takes him to his study desk in his dormitory, his apartment, his home, his trailer, wherever students live.

In addition to his formal courses of study, an Eastern student finds a great variety of activities which are related to his major field. These activities give him the chance to gain experience in one or several phases of the career for which he is training.

Many campus organizations exist to give the student experience which extends what he learns in the classroom and in the textbook and allows him to apply that theory and to continue to learn. The political science major, for instance, will be interested in the International Relations club; the Music major may belong to one of the national music honoraries on campus; the Education major will be interested in Future Teachers of America. Whatever the student studies at Eastern Washington College, he is a member of a group of students who share his interests and who attempt to further their ideas and their knowledge by membership in organizations which allow an exchange of ideas, which encourage leadership training and which become a part of "getting an education."

WHAT IS THE ROTC?

The letters ROTC stand for Reserve Officers Training Corps. All entering students except veterans and those students physically excused are required to take ROTC for two years.

DOES ROTC EXEMPT A STUDENT FROM THE DRAFT?

An ROTC and any other college student may apply for a draft deferment. In most cases the deferment will be granted provided the student maintains satisfactory grades and demonstrates ROTC proficiency.

Students may apply to continue in the corps during their junior and senior years. Advanced students are paid $500 a year and receive army commissions upon graduation from college and the ROTC program.

WHAT BRANCH OF SERVICE IS OFFERED AT EWCE?

NOTE TO THE STUDENT ENROLLED IN A RESERVE BRANCH OF THE ARMED FORCES:

Students in reserve branches of the armed forces are not exempt from ROTC. However, two or more years of reserve training may be substituted for the freshman year of ROTC.

HOW ABOUT ATHLETICS?

Known as the Savages, Eastern varsity teams compete in the tough Evergreen conference, a group of small colleges and universities. Major sports include football, basketball, track, baseball, swimming, tennis and golf. In addition, the college has an intercollegiate rifle team and a gymnastics team. For information regarding these sports, write to the Director of Athletics, EWCE, Cheney, Wash.

Students not taking part in the varsity or junior varsity program often join one of the intramural teams. The year-long intramural league competition is open to all students and includes football, basketball, track and softball.

WHAT ABOUT THE PE PROGRAM?

Eastern has an excellent physical education program in a well-equipped fieldhouse. Eastern PE graduates coach, direct health and community recreation programs and teach throughout the Northwest. PE classes are required during the first two years for both men and women students and those classes cover a wide range of activities — soccer, trampoline, bowling, swimming, weight lifting, wrestling, body mechanics, field hockey, folk and modern dancing, tennis, tumbling, volleyball, boxing, archery, badminton, golf, life saving and corrective laboratories.

Change of Pace

An Eastern Washington College student's primary task is his course of study. The reason a student goes to college is to train for a career and that training becomes hard work, both intellectually and physically. Students need the change of pace which allows relaxation and gives new energy to the task.

On the Eastern campus, the hard working student finds the time, the companions and the place for relaxation during his college career. That relaxation may take the form of a cup of coffee between classes in the Student Union, a campus mixer on Wednesday evenings, a swim in the college pool, a not-very-expert game of ball on a dorm lawn or, more often than not, the traditional college "bull session" with fellow students.

Extracurricular activities are organized, too. An activity exists for every student whatever his interests, his ability or talent. The student newspaper and yearbook, the college plays, the college radio station, the intramural sports leagues, the college athletic teams, the campus debate groups, the college band and choir, the student government, these are only a few of the extracurricular activities which are open to all students at Eastern. There are speech clubs, art clubs, PE clubs, ski clubs, service clubs, and scholastic clubs, a club for every student no matter what his interests and talents.
